

December News

Library News

- Christmas has come early to the library! A shipment of new books has just arrived. We have a nice new selection of fiction, nonfiction and picture books. Teachers get first chance to check out! The list of new titles will be sent via email. If you see any you are interested in, just let me know. Students will have the new books made available to them in January.
- I recently received information on a new free digital library that is available to you. PBS Learning Media is open to educators and students alike. This is a website that contains lesson plans, video, games, web links, printable documents and a lot more. You can search for materials by grade level and topic. There are links to all digital materials. You can use the site without registering, but a simple free registration provides access to more materials. Common Core standards are attached to each link or activity. I will be sending a link with all information.

December is Read A New Book Month! Please let me know if you are interested in scheduling a bonus New Book Read Aloud time for your class.

Thank You

- Thanks to everyone who supported our Animals in Distress Supply Drive. It was a huge success! We were amazed by the many generous donations.
- Thank you to everyone for their support of the Book Fair. It was well attended and PTA sold a lot of books!

Christmas Books

Are you ready for Christmas? I'm not either... but the library is! We have our Christmas book collection ready for you. Here are a few fun and favorite titles.

Olive the Other Reindeer

How Santa Got His Job

More Christmas Books

Russell's Christmas Magic

Snowmen at Christmas

Teacher's Night Before Christmas

Lighthouse Christmas

Christmas in the Country

Rocking Horse Christmas –this one is guaranteed to make you cry...but worth it!

Let me know if you are interested in any holiday read alouds.