Library Lessons & Books

With the end of the school year upon us, we are wrapping up classes here in the library. Students should return all of their books by June 1st. We will be sending home reminders to anyone with late or missing books. In the event that you are unable to locate your child's book please contact the library. We ask that all missing or damaged books are paid for so replacements can be ordered. Thank you for your help!

To wrap up our lessons for the 2015-2016 school year each grade level has been busy! Kindergarten is now checking out and reading nonfiction books like champs! First grade published their very own alphabet books to help them practice ABC order in the library. 2nd grade has been exploring biographies, and 3rd grade completed a massive animal research project. It has been a whirlwind trying to get it all done, but we succeeded!

Finally, we are in the process of updating our nonfiction collection by adding books from the Lower Milford Library. There will be many "new" nonfiction books for our students to enjoy soon!

Volunteers

We are looking to add to our team of dedicated library volunteers. Many of our current helpers are moving onto the IS, and we will miss them! Our volunteers help us to shelve the books that are returned each day. They usually work between 9:00 and 10:00 one morning a week. If interested, please contact the library. Thank You!

We Have Read...

Papa's Mechanical Fish by Candace Fleming
Mousetropolis by Gregory Christie
L is for Library by Sonya Terry
Ben Franklin's Big Splash by Barb Rosenstock
The Pout Pout Fish by Deb Diesen
Alphabet Rescue by Audrey Wood

Summer Reading

Attached you will find a list of fun summer reading for your child. I usually include a list of educational websites for summer practice too. This year, I chose not to. I am hoping you and your children can spend some "screen" free time this summer relaxing with a good book. Whether it is reading independently or with you, there is nothing better to foster a true love for reading than a great book. Enjoy!
