Humanities 0118

2012-2013

Course Description:

Humanities 0118 is a comprehensive reading/language arts intervention program that follows a 90 minute instructional model. Students are exposed to a variety of instructional techniques including whole group, small group, and individualized teaching. Students rotate among various stations including independent reading and using the Read 180 topic software on the computer.

Students may choose from a variety of books based on their personal Lexile number for independent reading. While on the computer, students strengthen their fluency, vocabulary, and spelling skills through various zones. All of these skills gained through this program are personalized for each student to measure his or her own success in order to become engaged, independent, and successful readers.
